AMETRA

A Psychological Map of Your Inner Systems

Prepared for Ridhisha Tyagi

ASTROLOGICAL CONFIGURATION

| Planet | Sign | House | Degree | Retrograde |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Jupiter | SAGITTARIUS | 3 | 25° | No |
| Ketu | SAGITTARIUS | 3 | 10° | Yes |
| Mars | ARIES | 7 | 18° | No |
| Mercury | LIBRA | 1 | 5° | No |
| Moon | CANCER | 10 | 15° | No |
| Rahu | GEMINI | 9 | 10° | Yes |
| Saturn | TAURUS | 8 | 2° | No |
| Sun | LIBRA | 1 | 10° | No |
| Venus | SCORPIO | 2 | 12° | No |

Current Planetary Period — Mahadasha: Venus | Antardasha: Moon

*The Table and Dashas are calculated by vedic calculations.

CORE ARCHETYPE

THE LUMINARY

Archetype Overview

A presence that naturally draws attention and influences the emotional tone of environments.

Psychological Meaning

The Luminary archetype appears in individuals whose identity systems tend to radiate outward into their surroundings. Their presence often shapes the emotional climate of groups and can encourage enthusiasm, clarity, or confidence.

Qualities To Preserve

- ability to inspire others
- natural warmth and enthusiasm
- confidence in personal expression
- capacity to energize environments

Common Limitations

• seeking validation from external attention
• feeling responsible for maintaining group energy
• placing too much pressure on personal visibility

Tarot Mirror

THE STAR

These tarot symbols represent illumination, vitality, and hope. They reflect the ability to bring clarity and emotional brightness into situations.

AMETRA

GROWTH ARCHETYPE

THE EMPATH

Archetype Overview

Individuals who are naturally attentive to emotional atmosphere and relational dynamics.

Psychological Meaning

The Empath archetype appears in people whose emotional systems register interpersonal signals quickly. They often notice subtle shifts in mood and emotional tone in environments.

Qualities To Preserve

- strong emotional awareness
- ability to understand others' feelings
- capacity for compassion and emotional support

Common Limitations

- absorbing emotional stress from others
- difficulty separating personal feelings from group

atmosphere

• emotional exhaustion when boundaries are unclear

Tarot Mirror

ACE OF CUPS

These tarot symbols reflect emotional intelligence, compassion, and the ability to hold complex feelings with steadiness.

AMETRA

PSYCHOLOGICAL SYSTEM INTENSITY

| Psychological System | Intensity |
|---|---|
| Identity System | Dominant |
| Emotional System | Dominant |
| Thinking & Communication System | Strong |
| Relationship Pattern | Present |
| Action System | Strong |
| Expansion & Wisdom System | Present |
| Pressure & Karmic System | Present |
| Growth Drive | Strong |
| Detachment Pattern | Strong |

Each psychological system in your chart operates with a different level of influence.

Dominant systems tend to shape your natural reactions and behavior patterns most strongly. They are often the psychological processes that guide how you experience identity, emotion, or decision-making in everyday life.

Strong systems remain highly active influences but may operate more flexibly depending on circumstances and personal awareness.

Present systems still contribute to your psychological structure, but they usually express themselves more subtly or in specific situations rather than constantly.

Understanding which systems are dominant or strong can help you recognize where your natural strengths appear and where conscious awareness may help create greater balance.

Identity System

How you experience and express your core sense of self.

Influence Level:

Dominant Influence

Core Pattern:

often expresses identity through relationships, cooperation, and a natural awareness of how people affect one another. You may feel most like yourself when you are creating harmony, building meaningful connections, or helping situations feel balanced and fair.

Stress Pattern:

situations where conflict becomes intense or where relationships feel emotionally uneven, which can create inner tension because your identity often grows through mutual understanding and connection.

Growth Direction:

learning to combine your natural courage with patience and awareness of timing, allowing your leadership to become steady and influential rather than only reactive.

Qualities To Preserve:

• sensitivity to balance

• understanding multiple perspectives

• desire for harmony in relationships

Caution:

losing sight of your own needs while trying to keep everyone else comfortable.

Emotional System

How your emotional mind processes safety, connection, and vulnerability.

Influence Level:

Dominant Influence

Core Pattern:

is deeply sensitive to emotional atmosphere and often notices subtle shifts in how people around you feel. Because your mind naturally seeks emotional safety, you tend to build strong attachments to people, places, and memories that create a sense of belonging.

Stress Pattern:

environments where emotional warmth feels inconsistent or where your feelings are dismissed too quickly, which can cause the system to become protective and withdraw in order to restore a sense of inner safety.

Growth Direction:

developing stronger emotional boundaries while keeping your natural compassion, allowing your empathy to remain a strength without becoming emotionally draining.

Qualities To Preserve:

• emotional sensitivity

• protective care for others

• strong connection to belonging

Caution:

ignoring your own needs while trying to take care of everyone else. Your feelings and intuition deserve the same care you give to others.

Thinking & Communication System

How your mind organizes information and communicates ideas.

Influence Level:

Strong Influence

Core Pattern:

often approaches thinking by considering different perspectives before forming a conclusion. Your mind naturally looks for fairness, balance, and understanding in conversations, which can make you a thoughtful communicator who tries to see how ideas affect everyone involved.

Stress Pattern:

situations where conversations become emotionally tense or where pressure to decide quickly makes it difficult to weigh different viewpoints, which can create mental tension because your mind prefers thoughtful consideration.

Growth Direction:

becoming more comfortable exploring new ideas while still keeping your natural sense of practical judgment, allowing your thinking to remain grounded without feeling resistant to change.

Qualities To Preserve:

- sensitivity to balance
- understanding multiple perspectives
- desire for harmony in relationships

Caution:

delaying decisions too long while trying to keep every perspective satisfied.

Relationship Pattern

How you experience affection, attachment, and emotional connection.

Influence Level:

Present Influence

Core Pattern:

often experiences love with emotional intensity and a deep desire for loyalty, trust, and meaningful connection. You may feel drawn to relationships that allow emotional honesty and the feeling that two people truly understand each other beneath the surface.

Stress Pattern:

relationships where trust feels uncertain or where emotional honesty is unclear, which can trigger strong reactions because your attachment style values depth and authenticity.

Growth Direction:

learning to express your true feelings even when they disrupt harmony, allowing relationships to grow through honesty rather than quiet compromise.

Qualities To Preserve:

• emotional depth

• psychological insight

• loyalty in meaningful bonds

Caution:

mistaking emotional intensity for emotional security, especially in situations where strong attraction appears before trust has been built.

Action System

How you pursue goals, express drive, and respond to challenge.

Influence Level:

Strong Influence

Core Pattern:

often takes action quickly and instinctively, especially when something sparks your interest or challenges your abilities.

Your motivation tends to rise when you are moving forward, solving problems directly, or pursuing something that feels exciting.

Stress Pattern:

situations where progress feels blocked or where your ability to act independently is limited, which can create frustration because your action system naturally wants movement and momentum.

Growth Direction:

learning to channel your intensity into purposeful action rather than letting emotional reactions control the direction of your energy.

Qualities To Preserve:

• initiative

• emotional courage

• direct engagement with challenges

Caution:

reacting too quickly in situations where a moment of reflection could lead to better results.

Expansion & Wisdom System

How your worldview develops and how life expands your understanding.

Influence Level:

Present Influence

Core Pattern:

often develops wisdom through exploration, philosophy, and the search for meaning behind life's experiences. Your mind naturally enjoys connecting ideas, cultures, and beliefs in ways that expand your understanding of the world.

Stress Pattern:

situations where learning feels restricted or where beliefs become rigid and unquestioned, which can create restlessness because your expansion system thrives on open discovery.

Growth Direction:

learning to offer compassion while also protecting your own emotional stability, allowing empathy to become a steady source of wisdom.

Qualities To Preserve:

• search for meaning

• optimism about growth

• desire for exploration and learning

Caution:

chasing new perspectives so quickly that important lessons are not fully integrated.

Pressure & Karmic System

Where life applies pressure in order to build maturity and awareness.

Influence Level:

Present Influence

Core Pattern:

often experiences pressure around security, stability, and the fear of losing what feels safe. You may feel a strong responsibility to build a life that feels reliable and secure, which can make you very careful about decisions that affect long-term stability.

Stress Pattern:

repeated situations where fear of change leads to holding onto familiar paths even when they no longer support growth, creating a cycle where stability becomes more important than personal evolution.

Growth Direction:

learning to balance ambition with emotional connection and self-compassion, allowing success to feel meaningful rather than burdensome.

Qualities To Preserve:

• stability

• patience

• ability to build lasting foundations

Caution:

remaining in situations that feel safe but quietly limit your growth.

Growth Drive

The direction life encourages you to grow toward.

Influence Level:

Strong Influence

Core Pattern:

often creates a strong desire to explore ideas, communication, and the ability to understand many different perspectives. You may feel drawn toward learning new information, asking questions, and developing the confidence to express your thoughts openly.

Stress Pattern:

periods where curiosity becomes scattered, leading to cycles of constant mental stimulation without deeper focus or clarity.

Growth Direction:

learning to use your intelligence and attention to detail with compassion toward yourself and others, allowing improvement to come from patience rather than pressure.

Qualities To Preserve:

• curiosity

• mental adaptability

• communication awareness

Caution:

chasing endless information without giving yourself time to reflect on what truly matters.

Detachment Pattern

Patterns that feel familiar but may require conscious balance.

Influence Level:

Strong Influence

Core Pattern:

often carries a natural familiarity with philosophical thinking, personal beliefs, and the search for meaning in life. You may feel comfortable forming your own worldview and trusting your perspective.

Stress Pattern:

cycles where relying too strongly on personal beliefs leads to dismissing alternative viewpoints too quickly.

Growth Direction:

learning to combine compassion with grounded action and clear personal boundaries.

Qualities To Preserve:

- search for meaning
- optimism about growth
- desire for exploration and learning

Caution:

assuming that the answers you already have are complete.

YOUR PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE SUMMARY

| | |
|---|---|
| Core Archetype | The Luminary |
| Growth Direction | The Empath |
| Dominant Systems | Emotional System, Identity System |
| Strong Systems | Detachment Pattern, Action System, Thinking & Communication System, Growth Drive |
| Key Qualities | ability to inspire others, natural warmth and enthusiasm, confidence in personal expression, capacity to energize environments |
| Development Focus | seeking validation from external attention, feeling responsible for maintaining group energy, placing too much pressure on personal visibility |

Each psychological system in your chart operates with a different level of influence.

Dominant systems shape your natural reactions and behavioral patterns most strongly. These systems often guide how you experience identity, emotions, and decision-making in everyday life.

Strong systems remain active influences but operate more flexibly depending on circumstances and awareness. Present systems still contribute to your psychological structure but usually appear in specific situations rather than constantly.

A NOTE FROM AMETRA

Every person carries a unique combination of tendencies, strengths, and inner patterns. These patterns are not limits — they are starting points for awareness. The purpose of this report is not to define who you must be, but to help illuminate how your internal systems naturally operate. When these patterns become visible, you gain the ability to guide them more consciously rather than being guided by them unconsciously.

Some qualities described in this report may feel immediately familiar, while others may become clearer only through reflection and experience. Psychological growth rarely happens all at once — it unfolds gradually as awareness deepens.

At Ametra we believe that insight is most valuable when it supports understanding, compassion, and personal growth. The patterns described here are simply one way of observing the complex and evolving nature of the human mind. Where awareness grows, freedom grows with it.